MA Operational Services Division Procurement Policy (excerpt)

MA Emergency Response Supplies, Services & Equipment

1.0 INTRODUCTION

In general, in Massachusetts, all procurement of any commodity or service must be done through a competitive process. However, a competitive process is not necessary if the commodity or service is available from an existing statewide contract in which the MA Operational Services Division (OSD) has already conducted the procurement¹ or if the procurement qualifies as an exemption under 801 CFR 21.05. One of the exemptions involves circumstances which require departments to procure commodities or services on an emergency basis but only for the period necessary to alleviate the immediate risk of harm, damage, or danger.²

This document will describe how a municipality can use the statewide contract for emergency supplies and services, documentation protocol for non-OSD contracted services and supplies, and provides an overview of FEMA record keeping requirements for procurement.

Following this document is a copy of OSD's most recent statewide contract listing for Emergency Response Supplies, Services and Equipment. It is also available on OSD's website under Publications and Reports (www.mass.gov/osd). Also attached is the OSD policy on exceptions to competitive bids. A set of standard FEMA tracking logs is also attached.

2.0 MA STATE CONTRACTS

The MA Operational Services Division has a variety of pre-existing statewide contracts that could be used in an emergency situation. Most notable is the one mentioned above: Emergency Response Supplies, Services and Equipment. This document lists vendors for a host of services and supplies that might be needed during a disaster situation. This should be the first resource the Emergency Management Directors use. MA OSD has other contracts that might be needed and not listed in the emergency response document. To access all OSD contracts it is best to visit the Comm-Pass website at www.comm-pass.com.

3.0 EMERGENCY EXEMPTION

Regulation 801 CMR 21.05(3) recognizes that unforeseen circumstances may require departments to procure commodities or services on an emergency basis. Some reasons for emergency procurements include:

The avoidance of harm to the government

The provision of mandated services

The provision of services or commodities for the health, welfare or safety of persons

The prevention of property damage

² Op. Cit. p. 3

Municipalities should enter into emergency contracts for only the period necessary to alleviate the immediate risk of harm, damage or danger.

Whenever possible, municipalities should make an effort to get competitive prices or quotes for the emergency procurement, if the desired service is not on statewide contract. It is better to take some time and get prices from qualified vendors up front than have to defend procurement decisions afterwards. Be certain to document the procurement process.

4.0 RECORD KEEPING/DOCUMENTATION

Because the expenses incurred for this type of emergency response may be reimbursable through the Federal Emergency Management Agency it is important to keep detailed and complete records of all procurement and contractual activities.

For any state or federal reimbursement or cost sharing, it will be necessary to document everything: all labor, materials, equipment applied and expended in providing animal mortality disposal. This documentation can include labor charges, equipment rental, purchase costs of expendable equipment or supplies, subcontractor costs, or any other costs associated with providing the mortality disposal activities. It is crucial that the personnel who will compile and maintain this documentation be identified as part of the disposal team, and that all relevant documents be forwarded to them.

Documentation of procurement, as well as all other activities, should always be in written form, but may be backed up by photographs, videos, and the like. A logbook, worksheets, or both may be used, but all should be written in ink, and any errors should be changed by drawing a single line through them, making the change, and initialing the change.

Logbooks should have numbered pages, with a sewn spine, making removal of pages difficult. Everyone and anyone making entries in logs or notebooks or worksheets should always sign and date the entries or papers. A different set of log books and worksheets should be provided for each response task, and they should be listed and numbered in a master control book, so that chain of custody is possible.³

Where the recovery project involves hauling either carcasses or materials, if FEMA reimbursement is possible, the municipality should keep very careful records, and be aware of issues of concern as follows: inaccurate truck capacity records, trucks not fully loaded, too lightly loaded, too heavily loaded, multiple counting of same load.

4.1 Procurement Information to Record

The following lists and forms are suggestions. Information required by FEMA and FEMA forms are provided following this document.

- ❖ Materials and supplies purchasing
 - Item and amount (i.e. number of shovels, tons of dirt)
 - Unit price and total price
 - Vendor (note whether OSD contract)
 - Purpose/Description of Work performed
 - Date Purchased, Date/s used
 - Location/project

- ❖ Force Account Labor
 - Location of work performed
 - Description of work performed
 - Name and job title for each worker
 - Dates and hours (separate regular and over time hours) worked
 - Total hours, hourly rates, benefits, totals

- ❖ Force Account Equipment
 - Location of work (physical address)
 - Description of work
 - Type of equipment (size, capacity, horsepower, make and model)
 - Equipment Code (FEMA's)
 - Operator's Name
 - Date
 - Hours
 - Equipment Rate
 - Totals

- ❖ Rented Equipment
 - Location/Site (physical address)
 - Description of Work
 - Type of Equipment size, capacity, horsepower, make and model)
 - Dates and hours used
 - Rate with and without operator
 - Total Cost
 - Vendor
 - Vendor invoice
 - Date/amount paid/check #

❖ Contract Work

Location/Site (physical address)
Description of Work - general
Dates worked
Contractor
Billing/Invoice number
Amount
Comments/Scope specific to each contractor

❖ Load Monitors' reports (to record and monitor hauling of materials or carcasses)

Time truck observed
Truck No. (given by Town to its own or contractor's truck)
Load Ticket (should have multiple copies)
Truck Capacity
Volume or Weight
Cargo
Origination/Destination
Weight slip
Any issues/conflicts and their resolution

5.0 FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY (FEMA)

Introduction

The following material is a summary of information from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) document Debris Management Guide, FEMA 325, July 2007 (www.fema.gov/government/grant/pa/demagde.shtm). We include this to provide an explanatory overview of FEMA's roles and requirements. However, please refer to the original document if you have questions. Regulations governing FEMA are found in 44 CFR Part 13.36 Procurement. FEMA has specific guidelines and rules regarding disaster debris that is eligible for reimbursement. Only FEMA can make eligibility determinations. FEMA publications with information about eligibility are: FEMA 321 (Public Assistance Policy Digest), FEMA 322 (Public Assistance Guide), and FEMA 323 (Public Assistance Applicant Handbook) and FEMA 325.

How and Why Does FEMA get involved and what difference does it make?

FEMA can provide reimbursement for disaster response and recovery activities. It is important to know what FEMA's requirements are so that if aid becomes eligible, a municipality may qualify for it. FEMA gets involved only after the State has requested and the President of the United States has provided a Federal Disaster Declaration. After a presidential declaration has been made, FEMA will provide information on the areas eligible for assistance and the types of assistance available. Only costs associated with FEMA criteria are reimbursed. To be eligible for reimbursement, work must be required as a result of the disaster, be located within a designated disaster area, and be the legal responsibility of an eligible applicant. Municipalities are eligible applicants. Eligible work must be in the public interest (as defined by FEMA) and costs must be reasonable.

Overview of FEMA's Documentation and Requirements for Procurement

Work done by a municipality's staff with their own equipment is eligible for funding, but hours worked and equipment used must be documented. Employees' overtime hours are eligible, but straight-time is not. Both straight and over-time is eligible for employees specifically hired for the emergency work. Equipment is usually reimbursed based on either FEMA's published rates or the Town's rates, whichever is less.

FEMA will also reimburse Mutual Aid costs if certain conditions are met, and Contract Services, provided the work is limited to that necessary to remove debris that is an immediate threat.

Procurement acceptable to FEMA includes:

- "Small Purchase Procedures" for services or supplies costing less than $100,000. This requires obtaining several price quotes from different sources.
- "Sealed bids" - preferred for construction projects
- "Competitive Proposals"- used more for services
- "Non Competitive Proposals" - should be used only when one of the other three methods is not possible and the item is only available from a single source, an emergency does not permit delay, or finding other vendors has been attempted and other vendors do not exist or are inadequate.

Contracts accepted by FEMA are:

- Lump Sum - work with a clear scope and total price
- Unit Price - work is done on an item by item basis
- Cost-plus-Fixed fee - either lump sum or unit price plus a contractor's fixed fee
- Time-and-Materials - FEMA would prefer that these types of contracts be avoided, but they are often necessary after an emergency. FEMA will reimburse for only 70 hours of this type of contract.

FEMA has specific contract requirements for contracts of different sizes. For each contract, documentation required includes at least a rationale for the procurement method, contract type, contractor selection or rejection, and the basis for the contract price.

Regarding animal carcasses, FEMA states on p. 27 of the Debris Management Guide (FEMA 325) that "putrescent debris is any debris that will decompose or rot, such as animal carcasses...The cost of putrescent debris collection and disposal may be eligible. Disposal of putrescent debris must be in compliance with applicable Federal, State, and local requirements to be eligible for Public Assistance grant funding.

In general, FEMA does not approve eligibility for removal of material from private property. If debris is brought by the property owner to a public way where it can be collected, costs associated may be eligible. In the case of animal carcasses washed by flood waters downstream onto other private land, retrieval of the carcasses may be allowed by FEMA because it is in the public interest due to the carcasses possibly posing health and safety threats to the public.

In general, when a town must work on private property, a “Right of Entry” form should be signed by the property owner. A sample form is attached to the Response Action Plan section. Photos of the carcasses/damage should be taken. As much documentation as possible should be done before removal.

Policy:	Exceptions to Competitive Procurements
Issue Date:	November 1, 2005
Date Last Revised:	August 13, 2007

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

A competitive procurement is required for the acquisition of any commodity or service or both unless the procurement qualifies as a competitive procurement exception under 801 CMR 21.05. This document explains the six competitive procurement exceptions allowed under 801 CMR 21.05. This section also clarifies two procurement concepts, the so-called "Sole Source" procurement and "A Deal Too Good to Pass Up," which are not competitive procurement exceptions.

A special note: Apart from the six exceptions covered in the body of this document, a competitive procurement is not necessary if the commodity or service is available from an existing statewide contract where OSD or its designee has already conducted the procurement. Please see the document entitled Procurement Introduction, available in Procurement Information Center for help on using existing statewide contracts. A listing of statewide contracts is available on Comm-PASS by using the Search function. Select "Search for Contracts", check the "statewide contract" box and "active" under Document Status. Clicking on the "Search" button will create a list of all active statewide contracts available for use by eligible entities. Also, if permitted in the RFR, departments may use another department's procurement to execute contracts with the awarded vendors. Please see Statewide Contract, Designated Contract, Single or Multiple Department Contract Guidance, available via a link at the end of this document.

All contracts executed under 801 CMR 21.05, Competitive Procurement Exceptions, must have written justification and documentation available for review in the procurement file. Insufficient documentation or abuse of the competitive procurement exceptions may result in the withdrawal of procurement authority or other sanctions.

Departments should note that an exception from a competitive procurement does not relieve a department from complying with the remaining provisions of 801 CMR 21.00, or other statutory, regulatory or policy requirements. These provisions include, but are not limited to, consultation with relevant PMT groups, maintenance of a procurement file, execution of all required contract forms, contract management and quality assurance. OSD's Quality Assurance Team reviews all of the exception categories as well as the procurement file to ensure that the required documentation is present.

SIX PROCUREMENT EXCEPTIONS

Regulation 801 CMR 21.05 recognizes the following six conditions in which a competitive procurement is not necessary.

1. Incidental purchases
2. Emergency situations that require the immediate acquisition of a commodity or service

1. INCIDENTAL PURCHASES

An incidental purchase is defined as a one-time, non-recurring, unanticipated need for commodities and/or services with a total dollar value of up to $5,000. As authorized under M.G.L. c. 7, s. 22, regulation 801 CMR 21.05(1) recognizes the fact that conducting a competitive procurement for certain types of purchases is neither cost-effective nor an efficient use of administrative and staff resources. Therefore, to maximize available resources, encourage best value in purchasing practices and support timeliness, some purchases may be considered incidental in nature. Departments are generally allowed to do incidental purchasing unless this privilege has been rescinded or the amount has been lowered due to non-compliance with procurement policies.

On the other hand, when a department knows that repeated or multiple purchases for the same commodity or service are planned or are a possibility, the commodity or service is not an exception and must be competitively procured.

Exceptions: There are two notable limitations for incidental purchasing: statewide contract usage and certain restrictions on MMARS object class/object codes. Even for incidental purchases, Executive departments must use statewide contracts. Any small purchase that is available on statewide contract does not qualify as an incidental purchase (procurement exception) since it is available from a contract established as a result of a competitive procurement. Certain object codes, such as contracted employees, legal services and leases, cannot be considered incidental purchases, regardless of the dollar value. Also, consultant services governed by M.G.L. c. 29, s. 29A (certain HH, NN and UU object codes) require secretariat approval for all purchases greater than $1,000.

Transactions and Required Documentation: The encumbrance transaction for incidental purchases is the GAE (General Accounting Encumbrance document) and the payment transaction is the INP (Incidental Payment document). For most incidental purchases, only the invoice is required. On the other hand, departments may determine it is in their best interest to execute a Commonwealth Terms and Conditions and Standard Contract Form. If they elect to do a CT (Contract Encumbrance document), RPO (Recurring Payment Order) or PC (Commodity Purchase Order), then both of these forms are required.

Affirmative Market Program: Pursuant to Executive Order 390, agencies should always consider using SOMWBA certified Minority- and Women-Owned Business Enterprises (M/WBE) for incidental purchases. A listing of SOMWBA certified businesses is located at www.mass.gov/somwba. These purchases would assist the agency in reaching their annual Affirmative Market Program benchmarks.

PLEASE SEE THE ASSOCIATED GUIDANCE ENTITLED INCIDENTAL PURCHASING POLICY GUIDANCE AVAILABLE VIA A LINK AT THE END OF THIS DOCUMENT.

2. EMERGENCY CONTRACTS

Regulation 801 CMR 21.05(3) recognizes that unforeseen circumstances may require departments to procure commodities or services on an emergency basis. Some reasons for emergency procurements include:

- The avoidance of harm to the government
- The provision of mandated services
- The provision of services or commodities for the health, welfare or safety of persons
- The prevention of property damage

Whenever possible, departments should make an effort to shop around for competitive prices or quotes for the emergency procurement.

Departments should enter into emergency contracts for only the period necessary to alleviate the immediate risk of harm, damage or danger. In certain circumstances, removal of clients receiving services through emergency human and social service contracts may be clinically contraindicated or could negatively impact clients. In those cases, departments may establish emergency contracts for a period of time consistent with the needs of the individual(s) served.

Departments are cautioned that extending emergency contracts to include other items that are not related to the immediate solution of the emergency is not appropriate. For example, an emergency contract to repair or replace a broken pipe should not be extended to include fixing other pipes or plumbing unrelated to the emergency or which present no emergency threat. These repairs need to be covered under a standard competitive procurement.

While department heads must make this important determination, secretariats may also establish a policy for administering emergency contracts. Departments are encouraged to work with the relevant OSD PMT group or with other departments to develop contingency plans for emergencies or to seek assistance when an emergency has arisen.

Departments are required to execute a contract with the entity selected to perform the contract. The department should execute the appropriate version of the Commonwealth Terms and Conditions as well as a Standard Contract Form as soon as possible after the need for the emergency commodity or service has arisen.

Note: OSD has compiled a reference guide of existing statewide contracts that could be used in an emergency that requires a specific commodity or service. That booklet, Emergency Response Supplies, Services and Equipment, is available on OSD's website under Publications and Reports.

TWO PROCUREMENT CONCEPTS THAT ARE NOT EXCEPTIONS

"SOLE SOURCE" PROCUREMENTS

Regulation 801 CMR 21.00 does not recognize, as a competitive procurement exception, the concept of sole source procurements, in which only one bidder is deemed to be capable of providing the commodity or service (thus eliminating the competitive procurement process). These procurements are counterproductive because they eliminate competition and the “pool” from which departments select quality contractors. They also prevent contractors, including small, minority or women-owned businesses and businesses owned by individuals with disabilities, from competing for Commonwealth contracts.

The concept of an open, fair and competitive procurement is designed to provide a broad opportunity for bidders to compete for Commonwealth contracts. The only way to guarantee this opportunity is to ensure that at least some method of competitive procurement is used to solicit a reasonable number of qualified bidders. It's possible that certain bidders may appear to be the only ones capable of providing a commodity or service (due to factors such as unique licensing restrictions or training requirements). Even in these situations, the department must attempt at least some form of verification by posting an RFR. If the RFR elicits only one response, the department may proceed with a contract. If additional qualified bidders respond to the RFR, then the basis for a competitive procurement has been established. Please note: Even if there was only one bidder at the time, a new competitive procurement will be necessary at the end of this contract, since new bidders may have entered the market in the interim.

"A DEAL TOO GOOD TO PASS UP"

Departments are sometimes approached unsolicited by a bidder and presented with a great “deal.” The deal may appear so beneficial or advantageous that rejecting the deal in favor of completing a competitive procurement may seem disadvantageous, wasteful or unjustifiable. Examples of situations that might fall under this provision include offers made to the Commonwealth at zero cost, at a cost significantly lower than market cost and even deals that would result in payments to a department, such as services for the removal of recycled materials.

However, there is no such thing as “a deal too good to pass up” unless and until a department has taken steps to confirm, through a public process that is fair, open and competitive, that there is no other bidder that can meet or beat the deal being offered to the Commonwealth. Because any misinterpretation of this concept could serve to undermine confidence in the fair, open and competitive requirements of the Commonwealth’s public procurement process, the procedures for handling this concept are explicitly outlined below.

1. The Chief Financial Officer of the department intending to use this provision must seek approval on department letterhead and in writing from the State Purchasing Agent. The following information must be included in the written request for approval:
 - A detailed description of the commodity or service being offered;
 - Name of the company that is offering the commodity or service and the terms of that offering;
 - An explanation of why the department is seeking to post notice of the offer rather than conduct a competitive procurement including all research and due diligence conducted by the department that resulted in the decision to exercise this option;
 - A copy of the RFR specifications that will be posted on Comm-PASS if the request to post the notice is approved in writing by the State Purchasing Agent; and
 - Proposed timeframes for posting on Comm-PASS. Please note that, while the timeframe for posting the notice on Comm-PASS may be brief, it must be posted for at least fourteen business days, the minimum period of time OSD believes is sufficient for all potential companies to review the specifications and respond, if it believes that the Commonwealth can achieve a better offer through a competitive bid. Please note that World Trade Organization requirements may mandate a longer posting period based on the total dollar value of the potential contract.

2. Once written approval has been received, a department must post the potential contract, using the Request for Response template on Comm-PASS to determine if there are any other interested bidders willing and able to provide a comparable or better offer. Departments may supplement the Comm-PASS posting with a similar notice in a newspaper; however, all RFRs posted under this provision with a procurement value of greater than $5,000 must appear on Comm-PASS. If no other interest is generated in response to the RFR, the department may proceed with a contract. However, depending on how the notice/RFR was written, if interest is generated, the department must either conduct a procurement that is fair, open and competitive or, if the notice was designed to solicit the actual submission of an RFR response with a comparable or better deal, then the department must evaluate all submitted responses.

3. All documentation, correspondence and information must be retained by the department in a procurement file.

OSD's Quality Assurance Team reviews these "deals too good to pass up", including all of the procurement file material. For tracking purposes, all written requests to the State Purchasing Agent and all postings on Comm-PASS must include the reference ("Notice of a Deal Too Good to Pass Up") in the title. Please see OSD Policy Guidance 05-11, Changes to "A Deal Too Good to Pass Up", available via a link at the end of this document, for more information.

Emergency Response Supplies, Services and Equipment

A Reference Guide to Statewide Contracts for Emergencies

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Operational Services Division
One Ashburton Place, Room 1017
Boston, MA 02108

Revised August 11, 2008

How to use this booklet

This booklet is intended as a reference guide for departments to obtain specific supplies, services and equipment for emergency and non-emergency situations. Referenced within this booklet is the “Emergency Standby Services” contract, which is only available under emergency situations, however, contractors may extend their services based on regional situations. Also, see the Hazardous Incident Response Equipment (HIRE) HSP01 contract contained in the booklet.

Using this booklet you can find information in three ways:

1. Quick Reference Table: Identifies supplies and/or services available through statewide contracts that are contained in this booklet.
2. Contract Reference Index: Provides a quick reference for locating the most commonly needed emergency items and navigating this booklet.
3. Alphabetical Listing of Statewide Contracts: Provides a convenient listing of statewide contracts and associated contact information during normal business hours, except where noted. For after hour emergencies, please contact any one of the three OSD Procurement Directors using their cellular phone numbers identified below.
